

Columnist Urges Academy To Train Diplomats; Raps Loss Of U.S. Leadership And Fear Of Reds In Alumni Address

Establishment of a "third U.S. academy, similar to West Point and Annapolis, to train statesmen and diplomats" was urged by Ivan "Cy" Peterman, Philadelphia Inquirer columnist and reporter, in an address at the Gettysburg college alumni dinner in Huber hall Friday night.

Peterman suggested that the academy "might best be located here in Gettysburg because of Gettysburg's historic importance. It seems ridiculous that we have academies, the best in the world, to train officers for our army, navy and air force and then they have to carry out the directives of late-comers who are diplomats because they have aided their political party, and because they might be interested in shooting boar or anything else than diplomacy.

"Victory To Confusion"

"Since the summer of 1945, it seems to me, the USA has passed from total victory to total confusion. I mean that. Yet, if we had an academy to train statesmen and diplomats in love of country and in diplomatic skill, to train them as our West Point and Annapolis men are trained, we would be far better off. Britain does it and practically every other country. We could well follow suit."

The Inquirer writer declared, "It is a great honor to speak at Gettysburg. I do not have to explain that to you who studied here. Suffice to say that during the Battle of the Ardennes, when conditions on the Western front were nearly as confused as they are here at home now, Americans were asked to identify themselves by repeating the opening phrase of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

"Since World War II we have as the world's No. 1 power failed to lead the way boldly and with confidence, as the whole world expected. We have wavered and hesitated, asked questions when we should have given orders; we became involved in a five year losing campaign of propaganda, with history's most ungrateful and unfaithful ally, Soviet Russia, and have backed away from a great opportunity to establish lasting world order. We have allowed the sacrifice of 250,000 American lives in World War II to go largely for nothing.

U.S. Fears And Doubts

"Worse than this lost chance for the rest of the world, we have brought on ourselves an unprecedented period of fear and doubt of our own power and capabilities. We have worked ourselves into a lather of continuing crisis and unending emergency . . . of lost prestige and appeasement . . . of lost peace and more war . . . first cold, then lukewarm, and now red hot . . . despite all these assurances that 65,000 casualties in Korea, including nearly 12,000 dead, constitutes limited war.

"Today our leaders admit they are afraid. They fear Russia. They fear China. They fear even puppets like Hungary and Czechoslovakia, who kidnap our citizens. They are afraid to offend anybody. Afraid to arm, afraid not to arm. Just afraid.

"These leaders, from President Truman to General Marshall to Secretary of State Acheson, have an obsession of danger, of impending crisis.

Pacifist Promoters

"Since the war I have spent five years watching the ring-around-ary in the United Nations, our all-in-one-basket solution for the peace. I have been watching this attempted simulation of a global government in action, watching statesmen, not generals, stoking up a new war while ostensibly engaged in settling the peace.

"We have maneuvered ourselves onto the verge of another big war because the ruling circles in Washington are comprised not of old-style pro-Americans but, first, the new-style species of one-world thinkers who have taken Truman over and are banking all on a pacifist-promoted United Nations; secondly by super-intellectuals who regard themselves as infallible and refuse to admit any mistakes; they thought Mao-Tse-Tung was Robin Hood and fell for the Red China trap, and now pretend to switch sides and hope people forget. And, outfoxed at Yalta, they hope to promote peace in the United Nations, or buy security and good-will and avert a clash in our time. The giveaway boys are now striving toward a new balance of power, under cover of U.N.'s peace-defending machinery, all of which they possessed in

JURY PLACES BLAME IN TWO LOCAL DEATHS

A finding of "some negligence" on the part of Earl L. Cump, general contractor, Chambersburg, was found by a coroner's jury Friday evening at the M. G. Barbour funeral home, Shippensburg, in the inquest into the deaths of Harry M. Roddy, 70, Steinwehr avenue, and Elmer M. Hardman, 64, of 335 South Washington street.

Part of Mt. Joy township's school children will attend school in the Gettysburg jointure next fall, and the others in Littlestown, if the Mt. Joy school directors follow the sentiment expressed at a patrons' meeting Friday night at the Hoffman Orphanage.

The meeting was called by the school board to learn whether the taxpayers of the township desired a renewal of the contract with the Littlestown jointure, which expired June 1, or favored other arrangements.

Approximately 75 persons attended the meeting, which was held in the Sunday school room of the chapel instead of the schoolhouse as originally scheduled, because of the large attendance. Arthur R. Buehler, president of the school board, presided.

Patrons Express Choice

After a lengthy discussion, President Buehler asked the taxpayers to vote, by a show of hands, on two questions: whether to split the township and send some of the pupils to Gettysburg and the others to Littlestown, and where the dividing line should be. The latter question was asked first.

The taxpayers had three alternatives on the dividing line: first, a line running from Two Taverns to the Harney-Littlestown road at the Walter Schriver farm; second, a line from Two Taverns, past the Hoff-

Allies Stop Chasing Reds In North Korea; Aggression Will Be Blocked; Evoke Censorship

Tokyo, June 2 (AP) — Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today the U. S. Eighth Army has quit chasing Reds in North Korea but will continue to block Communist aggression.

The United Nations ground commander gave no clue to possible future Allied operations.

He left unanswered the question: Will the U. N. Allies stand where they are now, just a few miles north of the Red Korean border, or will they strike out for specific targets?

Evoke Censorship

Right after he spoke, Eighth army headquarters clamped down the most restrictive news regulations since censorship was imposed last December.

When the lid fell, United Nations forward elements had run up against a bristling Chinese and Korean Communist defense line a short distance inside North Korea. This line had been strongly reinforced overnight.

There were two possible reasons for Van Fleet's announcement:

1. The Red reinforcements.
2. The Allies might be running out of steam after hurling back the biggest force the Reds ever had thrown against them.

Van Fleet told a news conference the Eighth Army has ended its "pursuit phase" of operations but "will continue, however, to stop the enemy's unwarranted aggression against South Korea, and will, when necessary and profitable, meet such threats within North Korea."

Reds Are Crippled

He said the Reds were "crippled severely" but are not exhausted and have reserves for "still another round."

Van Fleet said the U. N. Allies inflicted more than 100,000 casualties including about 10,000 captured, on the Chinese and North Korean Communists from May 16, when the Reds launched their second spring offensive, through May 31.

In Washington, the Defense Department said Red casualties for the period were 162,000.

"We can whip that Chinese army," Van Fleet declared, "any place, anywhere."

"As I've said many times before, the Chinese army in Korea hasn't got a chance and the best thing for them to do is go home."

The stiffened Red stand in North Korea indicated to frontline officers that the Communists had pulled back as far north as they intend to go willingly.

1945 in abundance, but lacked guts to use.

Raps Pink Diplomats
"Then there is a third group, definitely pro-Communist and soft to Moscow, which continues in places of influence. Their loyalties are defended whenever questioned until like Hiss, Remington and the rest they make mistakes. They infiltrated and covered each other and helped build up Russia. Who lost China for us? Owen Lattimore, John Carter Vincent, Leighton Stuart, John Service, all the pinkist-pinkist lot which included red journalists, missionaries, lecturers and State Department advisors.

"Under the guidance and influence of these left-over dreamers and do-gooders we have shoveled out nearly 300 billion dollars to win a war, rehabilitate Europe, appease Russia and scatter handouts like 2,000,000 tons of wheat to India.

"And what have we achieved — we have won ourselves a first class enemy — Soviet Russia and her puppets.

"Today Moscow controls 735,000,000 people to the West's 500,000,000. In 1945 we had 12,000,000 men under arms, 180 miles of naval combat vessels, 75,000 combat aircraft, the world's best, and the atom bomb.

"Navy Is a Secret"
"Today we have about 15 available divisions, our navy is a secret. General Vandenberg says our air force is not sufficient for the task it has. And the Russians have our radar-fire control which we gave them, courtesy of our State department."

"Of the U.S. strength today most of our combat-experienced troops are in Korea. Two divisions plus are in Europe and a fourth enroute. And three more are getting ready for final maneuvers.

Wasted Material

"We had colossal armaments all over Europe and the Pacific at the end of World War II. But we left airfields loaded with planes and equipment. Much of it we destroyed including thousands of Sherman tanks, which we are building anew today. We gave away uniforms for everybody, and now we don't have enough shoes or socks for the GIs.

"We unloaded $35 billion in Marshall aid, and I saw some of it rotting on Greek piers in 1946. Through UNRRA we gave much to the Reds. "At the end of the war we had $29 billion of surplus at purchase cost. Of that $29 billion, 13 billions were sold for $4 billion, much of it to John Maragon, George Dawson and other shysters. Nine billion dollars worth was scrapped. I saw demolition squads destroying thousands of planes which we need badly today. Six billions represented industrial plants which were disposed to private individuals or held as national reserve and is now producing again. One billion was in real estate.

Whereabouts Unknown
"Nobody in Washington can tell you who has got this war surplus material. No reporting system has ever been established, providing a breakdown.

"All this was in the face of a mightier Red army, nastier Kremlin policies, fifth column seizures of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, North Korea, the Berlin blockade and all the rest.

"But worse than all this we built up Russia to a first class power. From 1940 to 1950 we moved Russia up from a peasant nation to an industrial rival, through war aid, post war help and sneak assistance.

"We began by giving $12 billion in unaccounted lend-lease materials to the Red Imperialist machine. They still use that stuff, trucks, jeeps, planes, machinery, rubber factories, etc., as I saw in 1947 in Russia. Next $2 billion more through UNRRA. In the spring of 1948 we tried to include Stalin into ECA, but he refused. Otherwise we might already be broke and working for Joe.

Gloomy Picture

"All of this comprises a gloomy national picture. "But there are still a great many more patriotic Americans than any other kind. Americans are fed up with sons dying in far off places because our policies are soft. How do you think the families of 1,700 tubercular GIs in Valley Forge hospital feel knowing the boys contracted the disease because the government gave away our surplus woolens?

"We cannot afford to waste billions in resources against an enemy which uses captive people for cannon fodder, imposes slave rule and gains political headway with lies.

"If we have to give them the same treatment that finished Hitler, Mussolini and Tojo we can do it. We are a young, powerful and wealthy nation.

"Sooner or later we will act out stature." Peterman spoke before 275 attending the annual alumni dinner in

GARVER ENDS WIN STREAK FOR RED SOX

By JACK HAND

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Now is the time to hang a "for sale" sign on the St. Louis Browns' Ned Garver.

The DeWitt boys could start a baseball price war that would make Macy's look like Sportsman's Park on a dull Monday afternoon.

Is Garver for sale? Does Macy tell Gimbel?

Only 13 shopping days remain for Boston, New York, Cleveland and Detroit before the June 15 trade deadline arrives. If the DeWitts say the word, the sky's the limit.

White Sox Rained Out

The new surge of enthusiasm for Garver follows his 4-0 shutout of the Red Sox last night, ending Boston's 10-game win streak. It doesn't take any deep thinking to see Garver's value. The Browns, a few percentage points removed from the cellar, have won only 12 games. Garver has won seven.

The Chicago White Sox were rained out of their try for a 15th straight against Philadelphia to the dismay of some 30,000 at Comiskey Park. They'll try again against the A's today with Joe Dobson scheduled to carry the heavy burden.

They say everything evens up in the long run. The New York Yankees know it's true. Ten days ago they were losing to Detroit when rain saved them. Last night they were ahead of Detroit, 4-1, in the fifth inning when the game was washed out. The Tigers would have had to bat in the fifth to make it official.

Wynn Beats Senators

Cleveland, awakened after a sorry eastern trip, reeled off its fifth straight win behind Early Wynn who fanned Washington, 2-1, with three hits. Blanked by Julio Moreno, 1-0, until the eighth, the Tribe rallied to win on Harry Simpson's single, a sacrifice walk, Dale Mitchell's pinch single and a fly ball.

Sal Maglie moved out front as the National league's most winning pitcher as he coasted to his eighth straight, an 8-2 New York victory over Pittsburgh. While Maglie allowed only five hits, the Giants ripped into Pirate throwers for 13 including homers by Bobby Thomson and Whitey Lockman. It was Maglie's ninth win over the Pirates in 19 starts in his career. He has beaten them eight in a row.

Brooklyn had pitching trouble, losing to Cincinnati, 6-5, as Don Newcombe failed in relief. Joe Adcock's two-run single in the ninth clinaxed a three-run rally for the decision.

Several members of the 1914 miracle team saw the Boston Braves clip Chicago, 3-2, for Johnny Sain's third victory. The Braves eased past Chicago into third place, thanks to two walks and a wild throw by Bob Schultz, and Sam Jethroe's pinch single off reliever Dutch Leonard in the seventh.

St. Louis muffed a chance to gain on Brooklyn when they bowed to the Phillies, 7-3. The loss left the Cards two full games back of the Dodgers.

Sports Roundup

New York, June 2 (AP)—One good reason why you'll find the Cardinals near the top of the National league standing instead of somewhere down yonder is that little Joe Presko has come along.

Joe wasn't even listed on the Cards' roster last spring, but he outlasted the more-promising rookies. . . . Scout Runt Marr discovered Presko while making a "routine check" of the Kansas City Ban Johnson league in 1946 and signed him to play Class B ball at $150 a month.

Joe decided to stick in the Ban Johnson circuit another season and promptly fanned 60 men in the first four games. . . . Paul Waner, scouting for Pittsburgh, offered him a $5,000 bonus, but since he already was signed, Joe only got a new contract to pitch for St. Joseph, Mo., at $225 a month.

The experts who follow the Cards say he has surprising speed for his size, a fair curve and amazing control. . . . But what they all like about him is that he's a business-like guy who works hard at his trade. . . . Marr, naturally a booster, observes: "A pitcher is an artist. There are only ten real pitchers in the big leagues today. The rest are throwers. I would rate Presko in that ten."

WHAT'S IN A NAME? Short story told by the names of five fillies entered in today's Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont: "Sweet Talk," "Kiss Me Kate," "How," "Discreet," "Nothin' chance."

SPORTSPOURRI

Forester (Pop) Farley, chief of river control at Marietta, O., predicts that the Ohio will be at "pool stage" for the big regatta June 16. . . . Manager Bill Daly is asking the IBC to put a $100,000 price tag on the TV rights for the Savard-Louis fight. Maybe that's why there's no sale so far. . . . When Billy Southworth recruited Pete Perini to play football for Ohio State a few years ago, one means of persuasion was a promise that Pete would get a chance to play ball in the Braves chain. Now Pete is the big home-run clouter for the Hagerstown, Md., Braves, who are leading the Interstate league. . . . If Princeton's baseball team beats Yale next week to tie for the Ivy league title, the playoff may take place in Omaha during the NCAA tournament. Princeton already has been named for the college world series and Brown will play Springfield for a nomination.

Interstate League

(By The Associated Press)

Hagerstown's Braves, now leading the Class B Interstate league by four full games, had a new experience last night.

The Braves were shutout 2-0 by the Harrisburg Senators behind the five-hit pitching of Howie Rode-meyer. It was the first time this season that Hagerstown was blanked on its home field. In fact, it was only the 11th loss in 37 games.

Lancaster gained a tighter hold on second place, edging last-place Salisbury 4-3 while Wilmington's Blue Rocks were shut out by Allentown 2-0. The Red Roses are four games behind Hagerstown and two games ahead of Wilmington and Sunbury.

The loop's top two teams open a week-end series tonight. Sunbury, incidentally, moved within three percentage points of Wilmington by trouncing York 12-0. Allentown, by winning, remained in fifth place a half game behind both Wilmington and Sunbury.

Tonight's games: Hagerstown at Lancaster; York at Allentown; Wilmington at Harrisburg, and Salisbury at Sunbury.

SPORTS SHORTS

New York, June 2 (AP)—Paddy Demarco, Brooklyn lightweight contender, is gunning for the new champ, James Carter, after his 10-round win over Eddie Giosa last night.

"He's slow," said Demarco. "I think I can outlast him. My bob and weave ought to do the trick. I'd love to fight him, just as much as Ike Williams. Even more so."

However, it may be sometime before Demarco gets Carter into the ring.

New York, June 2 (AP)—Here's positive proof that the tail is wagging the dog in the boxing business. Only 1,021 paid $2,008, a new season low, to see last night's St. Nicholas arena show in which Paddy Demarco of Brooklyn won a unanimous 10-round decision over Eddie Giosa of Philadelphia. But each fighter drew a $2,250 payday from the television sponsor.

New York, June 2 (AP)—Joe Louis and Lee Savold will struggle through 15 rounds or less June 13 at the Polo Grounds without benefit of radio or television.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE COMEDIANS

I am sure that none of us can adequately appraise the value of comedians to our every day life. No tribute is too good for them. They are a tonic that leaves only good effects. There are all too few of them.

On the stage, over the radio, in our newspapers and magazines, and now on television, these comedians bring hope and laughter to us all. If only all of these entertainers could but know the deep appreciation we have for them!

"Funny people" are born with humor within them. How could Mark Twain ever have been anything else than what he was — a superb humorist? Never has the Indiana humorist, the late Kin Hubbard, been adequately appreciated. I would name his "Abe Martin" as one of the greatest of all humorous creations.

No one can read the books of the late Will Cuppy without taking a new lease on life. And this goes for George Fitch, Will Rogers, and Robert Benchley, who did so much to put light and color into the lives of us all.

The stage has contributed its full share of comedians and performers who have left a trail of happy memories behind, and who are contributing anew today. How could we ever quickly forget W. C. Fields? Will Rogers once told me that he considered Charlie Chaplin the greatest artist of a humorous nature to come out of Hollywood.

There is no other Beatrice Lillie! She is unique and on top of it all she is both a genius and an artist. She is medicine to anyone who sees her upon the stage or screen. Her acts are always fresh and different. No one can harbor the "blues" with Beatrice Lillie as a performer.

Among a nation's benefactors are these comedians and humorists of ours. And although they make us laugh and drive dull care from us, their humility is the same as ours. They go through sorrow, get discouraged, and have their dark days the same as all of us, but they keep all this mostly hidden. People expect them to be always funny!

CHARACTER

Fame's a goddess false and fickle. Wealth may through the fingers trickle.

Time has reputations faded. Strength by weakness is invaded. Of the gains of richest, strongest, Character endures the longest.

Only character is rustproof. Has a lustre that is dustproof. Cups that prove man's skill was greater.

Tarnish dulls a few months later. Much to time at last surrenders. Character retains its splendors.

Son of mine, through all endeavor, To deceive be tempted never.

Scorn the gaudy things that perish. First and last your honor cherish. Character, through play and strife time, Once established, lasts a lifetime.

Riding with Russell

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL
Member S.A.E.

The pedestrian is another person who doesn't know where the next car is coming from.

Psychology Of Mileage

Keeping everlastingly conscious of the relation between skillful driving and gasoline mileage is about the only hope the motorist has of getting out of the present depression of high fuel consumption. Economy runs prove that many cars which regularly give 10 miles to the gallon in the hands of the novice can be made to produce better than 20 when there's an expert at the wheel. The average driver cannot hope to match the skill of the test driver; but he can go a long way toward better results per tankful by being more aware of what he's doing. I have seen this demonstrated by recent tests at the owner level. Whenever a mechanic hooks up a test gallon the car owner usually can run up a mileage that surprises him. Disconnect the testing equipment and he is right back to disappointing mileage again.

The very sight of that glass container with its precious filling of fuel makes the driver easy on the accelerator. He watches traffic lights more carefully, avoids being forced into higher speeds by other cars, avoids unnecessary stops, coasts more, runs at the car's easier gait (which is its most economical speed), and stops racing on the getway. What a whale of a difference it makes!

Toward A Better Start

It has taken the automobile trade quite awhile to get around to providing a more convenient way to protect ignition parts against moisture from dampness and condensation, but at long last we have the special protective solution in convenient spray-on form. It comes in a small container with a handy button to release the spray. With a shot of spray now and again there should be a lot less difficulty starting engines that are stored in damp places or out in the rain, especially at the seashore.

This will surprise those who know that excessive loads are placed on the battery these days but over-charging causes 55 percent of failure with this important unit of the car. . . . The newest tachometer for engines is electric in operation. . . . A check-up of older cars still plying the roads shows that the most outdated are those that were customized, the regular production models still looking more modern. . . .

Mechanic Joe Speaking: "Going on the theory that most car troubles are due to overlooking the simple things I make it a rule to check into the basic points about car care before jumping to the conclusion that I have serious trouble on my hands. That's why I check the water supply whenever an owner complains of overheating, and the level of the brake fluid if he has brake trouble.

"Just the other day a car was towed in because its motor wouldn't run. Everything looked black to the owner, especially when I suggested that the car might merely be out of gas. He quickly pointed to the gas gauge which registered a quarter-full tank, but a look under the car showed me that there was a bad dent in the tank which made the gauge lie. Five gallons of gas fixed this one."

Fussing Comes High

One thing that is hard for the average car tinkerer to get through his head is the avoidance of fussing with the breaker points. It is normal enough for points to pit, and this doesn't mean that they are not making good electrical contact. In fact, tests have proved that the pitting may improve contacting as more areas touch. However, this is true only to the point where the owner decided that he doesn't like what he sees and starts to monkey with the points. Just as soon as he files them down a bit and resets them they no longer make a close fit of the hills and valleys, but meet on the peaks. Soon he finds that he must either do more filing or replace the points. In filing he soon cuts through the thin layer of tungsten.

Explaining That "Miss"

An engine that misses at all speeds may or may not be a headache. Perhaps this is a hint that the oil filter (if the wet type) may have too much oil in it. Missing can also be due to a clogged muffler or a bent tail pipe. Other possibilities include a loose throttle lever or loose intake manifold nuts. Then there are such simple things as the possibility of an ignition wire coming loose from the distributor cap, or a loose spark plug which allows oil to suck up past the rings of the particular cylinder and foul the plug's points.

Looking for an adjustment at the float of the carburetor is one of those pointless activities which beset all normal car owners. Float level is adjusted by bending the lip of the float.

The trouble of the serious kind often develops right after a long hot ride and during sudden application of the brakes or running over a rough road.

If you are preparing to have the engine treated to a valve grinding it is a good idea to use some tune-up oil or valve oil in with the crankcase oil for a week or so before. This makes it easier to remove the valves.

Cheaper Than Repairs

Why the automobile industry is reverting to the policy of changing motor oil every thousand miles, instead of for the four seasons, is largely due to the discovery that most cars travel less than 5,000 miles annually. Where a car has a lot of mileage on the open road oil is less contaminated and there is change by installment due to the oil that must be added enroute. Under such conditions complete changes can be less frequent, and without risk of injury to the engine. But for those motors which really do not get a break the business of changing oil four times a year isn't enough to hold dilution down to a safe point. Here a change every 500 miles may be needed for best results.

Solved By Accident

I am indebted to a friend for an interesting discovery of the cause of a certain car noise that has probably baffled many others as well. Having spent $15 trying unsuccessfully to rid the rear end of a rattle that sounded like a misplaced tool, a loose floor board or a worn shock absorber he was about to give up when a lad at the filling station inflated the spare tire to more than the usual pressure. From that point on the noise disappeared. Higher inflation of the tire took up a little slack in the holder. The reason service men could not locate the noise when riding in the luggage compartment was simply because their weight held the spare steady.

Q. In spite of several flushings there still is a lot of sediment in the cooling system of my car. Looks like some metal part is disintegrating. However, there have been no signs of chronic overheating. J. M. B.

A. You will find that the water distribution tube in the motor block is rotted out and should be replaced. Overheating is likely to follow neglect of this.

Q. The braking system on my car continues to give trouble even though I have had the fluid supply checked, and the lines gone over for possible leakage. Would you recommend installing a new master cylinder? Wm. L. K.

A. First have the present master cylinder checked to see that it is level.

Q. I have been troubled with my car showing low oil pressure. Replacing the spring of the relief valve hasn't helped. Do you think the motor needs a complete overhaul? H. B. V.

A. At this point I would take down the oil pan and check to see if the oil pump's screen is clogged.

Q. How do weak valve springs show up on a vacuum gauge? H. G. Jr.

A. The pointer of the gauge will go into some wide swings when the springs are weak or broken.

Q. I can't seem to keep the battery up, in spite of frequent charging. There are no shorts. W. M. McN.

A. How about trouble with the brakes? Sometimes pressure in the lines will cause the stoplights to go on after the car has been put away.

Some of the plates were made of wood and others of plastic with the names either carved out of the material or burned or printed on. In addition to the teacher's name some of the plates had symbols on them designating the department in which the teacher taught.

New Oxford

New Oxford — One of the largest turnouts of any recent year appeared in New Oxford Wednesday evening to witness the annual Memorial Day parade sponsored by the Sons of Union Veterans as an Bixler, Barbara Shoemaker, Mary Lou King, Nadine Fiesel, Ted Crouse, Louise Frymyer, Louise Kerns and Shirley Dutterer, and fireman, James Carpenter.

Class Day Program

At a recent assembly at the local high school the members of the senior class presented a program in the form of a class day. The program opened with devotions in charge of Jack Mackley, who is president of the student body. Robert Gordon, historian of the graduating class, read the class history, after which Barbara Jeffries and Jean Grushon gave the prophecy of the class. The FFA Boys' club quartet then sang several selections which were followed with the reading of the class will by Doris Hess and Eleanor Bankert. A vocal solo, "Fagan Love Song," was sung by Robert Yingling. Next on the program was the presentation of gifts to the members of the class and its advisers by Mahlon Weikert and Lewis Motter. All members participated in singing the class song, the words of which were written by Allen Shanesbrook and Lewis Motter, to the tune of "You'll Always Be the One I Love." Following this the passing of the colors between the presidents of the junior and senior classes took place. The juniors paid tribute to the class of "1951," with an appropriate song and the activities were closed with the entire student body singing the Alma Mater.

During the closing month of the school term the girls of the Littlestown high softball team played two games with the York Springs high school team. In the away game the score was Littlestown 6 and York Springs 25, while the home game result was 17 for the visitors and 10 for the local lassies. The Littlestown lineup consisted of Mary Lou Boyd, Beverly DeHoff, Betty Yealy, Jean Bish, Hazel Rimel, Irene Koontz, Nancy Kershner, Betty Wolfe, Shirley Stoner, Diane Stambaugh, Shirley Sparver, Shirley Crouse, Viola Hankey, Laura Stock, Shirley Warner, Phyllis Dickinson and Joan Shull.

The students of L. H. S. have entered a contest to secure a 16-inch Philco television set for the school. During the summer months and commencing with the next term in September each member of the student body is saving cashier's receipts to be counted as votes. All students are urged to collect such receipts during the summer and also to get them from friends. Receipts from the American Stores or Acme Markets are acceptable.

man orphanage to Barlow, or a line following the new road from Two Taverns to Barlow. A majority favored the first, and a majority also favored the township split, for school purposes.

The contract with the Littlestown jointure ran for three years. Under it, a majority of the pupils attended school in the Littlestown jointure. Those who went to Gettysburg had their tuition paid through the Littlestown jointure.

the township joins two jointures, Gettysburg and Littlestown, the split will cost the township approximately $16,000 more a year. It will, however, receive full state reimbursement in both districts.

President Buehler warned that any action which may be taken by the school board may be of a more or less temporary nature. He said that a merger of school districts and jointures might be expected within a few years.

A split in the township would affect principally high school pupils, since, according to Mr. Buehler, the Gettysburg jointure is not in a position to take all of the children from the northern half of the township until its elementary school building program is completed. It was estimated that 60 per cent of the children live closer to Gettysburg than to Littlestown.

259 Pupils Enrolled
The enrollment in Mt. Joy township in the school year just ended was 259 pupils, of which 155, it was estimated, fall within the area of the northern section and 104 in the Littlestown area.

Figures were presented showing the cost per pupil per year as follows: Gettysburg high school, $181.38; Gettysburg elementary, $114.44; Littlestown high school, $153.70; Littlestown elementary, $81.80. The average salary paid teachers in the Gettysburg jointure was reported as $3,550 a year and in Littlestown, $2,586.

President Buehler said that if the township is split, and Gettysburg is unable to take all the children from the northern half, it would be necessary to operate a township school (Hoffman orphanage) until Gettysburg is able, through a building program, to accommodate all the northern half pupils.

Transportation Big Issue
Patrons found little fault with the instruction in either Littlestown or Gettysburg. The issues revolved principally around transportation, with numerous parents criticizing crowded bus accommodations, lack of shelters and long rides to and from Littlestown.

In addition to school board members present at the patrons' meeting, Charles I. Raffensperger, assistant county superintendent of schools, was present and answered several questions.

President Buehler said no action has been taken by the school board and that the meeting had been called to learn the sentiments of the school patrons.
